Access Control Model

Keep sensitive information safe. Manage user access rights in an easy and flexible way, without the help of a consultant.

Not every user should have the same access permissions. When you deal with sensitive information, you need to limit access to specific types of information (i.e. claims) to specific people within your organization. With effacts Access Control Model, you can establish governance and maintain a record of what each user is able to see and do. Start with the standard "editor" and "viewer" roles, and assign access rights to any user by type of information, legal matter, entity, department or business unit in a flexible, easy to use dashboard. Keep confidential information away from users that do not have permission to access it. With effacts, you can manage confidential information safely, reduce the risk of a data breach and ensure compliance with your data privacy policy.

effacts is a secure online repository for all your legal information, full of smart functions to help you get the most value out of it.
