How a hundred entities are managed with just a few clicks

Claudia Jacobs, Privacy Officer & Legal Officer, Vebeego International

Corporate housekeeping used to be a big challenge at Vebeego

Unconnected. That's the way Claudia Jacobs used to describe entity management at Vebeego. The system she was using couldn't tie information about different entities together. It wasn't user-friendly. And it had to be customised heavily, which meant a hefty budget.

Now with effacts, a hundred entities can be managed with just a few clicks

When she'd seen a demo of effacts, Claudia knew instantly that it was the right solution. Two years later and she still knows she made the best decision. With effacts, managing over a hundred legal entities is much easier for her and her colleagues. Now she can see and update everything within a few clicks.

I needed an up-to-date structure of our legal entities at all times. effacts makes that possible. And with a lot less work than before. With effacts, I can link all the information together: contracts, shareholders, companies, appointments and more. When I make a change in one place, the system updates everywhere. I don't have to do it over again. It's automatic.

effacts was easy to set up

Claudia had been worried about migrating the data from the previous database they'd been using. But she was surprised at how easy it was.

It was so easy to migrate our data from our old system to effacts. It went so quickly and it took just one phone call.

effacts was easy to learn, easy to use

She'll tell you that giving access to her colleagues is very simple, which means she doesn't waste time training new joiners.

effacts is so user-friendly. When I have a new colleague I just give them a log-in and they can start using it.

The bottom line: productivity is up

With effacts, Claudia says that the legal team are more up-to-date than ever before. And the best news for the business is that there's been a significant improvement in compliance and productivity.
